AND SO OUR FAME SPREADS.

Frankfort, Ind., June 5, 1937.

Postmaster, Hondo, Texas. Dear Sir:

I have become interested in the sketch by Mr. Ripley showing the "This Is God's Country" sign purported to be there somewhere and in line with other signs of a more or less similar nature which I have assembled pictures of for the purpose of preparing a short illustrated article, I am wondering if it is possible for me to secure the loan of an actual photo of it, or if you do not happen to have a picture of it, if you can advise me of someone who may have it or could take it.

My main work is that of assisting my father here at the studio which we conduct jointly and I write as a sideline and hence I would make a copy of the picture loaned me and would then return it to you the next day after it is received here. While I do not pay very highly for the loan of this type of picture (usually $1.50) I would send you a copy of any publication using it (you, or whoever supplies the original photo) and this would be interesting to the furnisher in the event I can entice the editor to give him credit late as the photographer.

If a kodaker is found there who might take it, I will send a roll of films for the purpose if I am advised as to what size to send, and being a photographer, would develop it and send a free print of each if the said film is sent back to me for processing.

Thanks for any cooperation you may grant me in this. I did not know how else to ask anyone there in-as-far as I know no one in that county, nor conveniently near.

Sincerely, BERNARD L. KOBEL, Box 105, Frankfort, Indiana.

Postmaster Brucks secured the desired photograph from Fly Drug Co., forwarded it to Mr. Kobel, and now the people of Hondo will await with interest to see what use he makes of it.

Some are born famous, some achieve fame, but Hondo seems destined to have fame thrust upon her!

MARRIED.

A wedding of interest to a large number of friends was that of Miss Florine Williams, daughter of Mr. Myrtle Williams, and Mr. Geo. K. "Bootie" Hartmann, which occurred Tuesday, June 15, 1937. The ceremony was performed at 9:00 A. M. in San Antonio by Rev. P. E. Lancaster, former pastor of the Methodist church here. Witnesses were Mrs. W. J. Rice and Juanita Lancaster. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Hartmann left on a brief bridal trip to East and South Texas. The couple returned home yesterday and will make their home in an apartment in the Joe Meyer residence.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will Miller of Hondo and graduated from Hondo High School last month. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hartmann, of Quini, is connected with the Barnes Barber Shop here. He also is a member of the Rythm Kings dance orchestra.

Their friends wish them a long and happy married life.

MARRIED TUESDAY.

Of interest to many friends in Medina County is the marriage of Mr. Leslie D. Muennink, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Muennink of Hondo, to Miss Mary Ann Wipff, daughter of Mrs. E. Wipff of Divot, Texas. The wedding took place at 4 P. M. June 15, in the Hondo Methodist Church in the presence of close relatives. The ceremony was performed by G. W. Muennink, uncle of the groom, and the impressive ritual of the M. E. Church South was used in the ceremony.

Miss Margaret Wipff, sister of the bride, and Walter Muennink, brother of the groom, were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Muennink will be at home on the F. F. Muennink ranch southeast of Hondo.

Congratulations and best wishes are extended to the young couple.

NEW CAFE.

The Oasis Cafe opened for business Monday at the place formerly occupied by Ray's fruit stand between the post office and the City Bakery. The building has been renovated and re-arranged, and an up-to-date eating and drinking place has been arranged. You can get short orders and any kind of cold bottled drinks at all hours of the day.

In addition to the counter service, arrangements have been made for serving the public in the open air in the evenings in the garden in the rear of the building.

The business is being conducted by Messrs. W. H. Kollman and R. S. Vaughan, and on the last page of this paper they extend an invitation to the public to share its patronage with them.

THE OWLETT CLUB MEETS.

The Owlett Club met at the home of Sue Muennink, Tuesday. A party was planned and other matters discussed. Refreshments of pimiento cheese sandwiches, cookies and coca cola were served to Frances Ruth Fly, Billy Merritt, Helen Burgin, Elizabeth Reynolds, Sis Meyer, Evelyn Ruth Dawson and Sue Muennink.

VOGEL-ROBINSON.

Miss Lucille Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Robinson of Hondo, and Mr. Henry Vogel, son of Mr. Jacob Vogel of D'Annis, were united in holy wedlock in a beautiful ceremony Tuesday morning, June 15, 1937, at 9 o'clock in St. John the Evangelist's church of Hondo. Rev. Father Paul Potgens, pastor of St. John's, performed the ceremony and officiated at the Nuptial High Mass. The church choir sang the Mass.

The Sanctuary with its candle-lighted altars and floral adornments of Shasta daisies and fern was the beautiful setting for the impressive service. Floor baskets of Shasta daisies and fern banked the aisle leading to the entrance of the Sanctuary where the groom and his best man, Mr. Richard Brieden of Castroville, awaited the bridal party.

The attendants entered as follows: Bridesmaid, Miss Lorene Koch of Hondo, and maid of honor, Miss Irene Carle of D'Annis, who wore floor-length frocks of Nile green organza with yellow poke bonnets and sandals to match, and carried Shasta daisies and fern. Groomsman was Mr. Hillmar Koch of D'Annis. Preceding the bride, who entered with her father, were two little flower girls, Mary Louise Bendele and Allen Zinsmeyer, wearing long ruffled frocks of pink orandy and carrying daisies. Master Milton Carle was ring-bearer.

Miss Robinson was lovely in her satin bridal gown made en traine. Its simple princess lines were relieved by a standing collar of lace adorned with flowers made of satin and seed pearls which also edged the square neck. Her tulle veil was caught with a band of orange blossoms and fashioned in halo effect. She carried a shower bouquet of Calla lilies and fern.

Following the Nuptial High Mass the wedding party and the immediate families of the couple were served a sumptuous wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents. The large white wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom, centered the table.

Immediately after dinner Mr. and Mrs. Vogel left on a motor trip to Corpus Christi and other points of interest along the coast. The bride wore a travel suit of beige with brown accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Vogel will make their home in D'Annis.

ST PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

"Am I my brother's keeper?" The average person will admit a certain responsibility over against the neighbor, at any rate in leaving him alone. But that this includes help for the neighbor in every bodily need is not so readily admitted. That he is to be merciful even as the Father is merciful, seems to go beyond the so-called golden rule. Yet the story of the Good Samaritan was told for the purpose of indicating in what manner we are to be neighbor to others. He proved to be a neighbor because he showed mercy to the one fallen among thieves. "Go and do thou likewise." This is included in the fifth commandment: "Thou shalt not kill." We should fear and love God and not hurt our neighbor in his body; but help and befriend him in every bodily need.

QUIHI NOTES.

And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife, and he loved her. Gen. 24: 67.

"All's well that ends well." The real end, and not merely the end of a chapter, an episode, a sector of life. And the day should not be lauded till the sunset is past, nor a life judged till the coffin lid is closed. Every essential of a wedding is mentioned, and yet how simple, primitive, homely and homespun the whole wedding account and description. We expected a greater ado, did we not? Our demands in that line have grown more extensive and exacting. The world was treated to another wedding account recently, with all the trimmings and details the pomp and picturesqueness and palaver. There the train carried 226 pieces of luggage, including 183 trunks, containing 82 dresses for the bride. There were broad-sashed officials, artists played preludes, cantatas, fugues and oratorios, diadems of diamonds sparkled; from head to foot everything matched in the bridal garments; flowers, flags, paintings, candelabras and chandeliers in great abundance, topped off with 2000 telegrams; a cocktail interlude ushered in a heavier repast consisting, if the papers did not exaggerate, of 200 lbs. of meat, 140 lbs. of fish, 140 lbs. of ducks and chickens, and 250 bottles of champagne to wash it all down and restore (?) the equilibrium for less than fifty guests. There was a special coach and a shiny car and a lofty castle in gay Austria and the heroic bridegroom carried the bride over the threshold of the festive portals at the chateaux, where they live happily thereafter, if the romantic spell does not break before. There was a wedding "comme il faut", as the world expects it in those circles, whereas our text merely conjures up a raw tent, a taking, a becoming, a loving, pure and simple. But is the comparison not odious, out of place? Was it not His Royal Highness and Her Highness there, and only a common peasant here, with pocketbooks worldwide different? Just a few reminders. Isaac was richer than the Duke of Windsor—Isaac and Rebekah enter holy wedlock with a clean record—neither has deserted duty or tradition for personal predilection and passion—both unite with divine consent and direction—both abide in the ways of the Lord unto the end—both are greater than the duke and the duchess, in the history of God's kingdom. Their name and fate, in all simplicity, is preserved for thousands of years—and what will this royal affair mean in a few years? More than a one-day show?

Vacation time is at hand. Mrs. Elmer Saathoff, Sr., has already finished part of hers, returning from San Antonio where she has visited her children and saluted the little newcomer in the home of her daughter, Ida Mae. Mr. and Mrs. E. Welch are visiting with their children at Goliad, also for the sake of recuperation.

Mrs. Elmer Saathoff and Mrs. Joe Horn have applied for membership some time ago. Welcome, of course. There are others who should follow their step.

Fourteen members and a welcome guest, Mrs. Clarence Dailey, attended the Ladies' Aid meet on the 3rd inst. Besides the devotional parts, as standing numbers, and the transaction of various business matters, a reading was enjoyed on Cultural Aspects of Modern Foods, and the final arrangements were discussed for the social which was had on June 10th with a great majority of the members and their folks present. In the usual social game, prizes were awarded to Mrs. O. Lindeburg (donated by Mrs. Arnold Balzen), Miss Aileen Grell (donated by Mrs. Edgar Balzen), Mrs. Harm Gerdes (donated by Mrs. Otto Grell), and to Marvin Grell (donated by Mrs. Geo. Balzen), Elton Lindeburg (donated by Mrs. Otto Lindeburg), Herbert Moehring, Mrs. D. Lindeburg (donated by Mrs. F. Boehle and Mrs. C. H. Fous, respectively). A generous luncheon was served by the committee in charge.

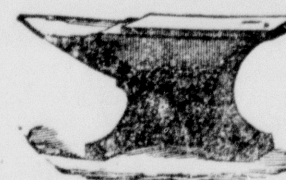

Another rich and interesting, and well attended program, was presented by the Luther League. The business meeting had many guests, among them the Rev. W. C. Leibfarth, Miss Elvira Schweers and Chester Saathoff. Miss Schweers made a strong plea to induce our league to join the state and national leagues. Final decision was deferred till later. The next program will comprise the following numbers: Recitations, Misses Lorine Bohlen, Eileen Hartman; select readings, Miss Hulda Neumann, Elmer Nietenhoefer; vocal selections, Mrs. Wesley DeGrodt, Mrs. Albert Reus; instrumental, Miss Corine Nietenhoefer.

The League will sponsor another Fourth of July celebration on the 5th, at the usual place and time and with the usual fine program, races, etc. Look for the ad in the paper and join us for a few pleasant hours.

Announcements for June the 20th: German service at 10; Sunday school at 9; English service at 8 P. M. And all for you. Come.

SQUARE DEALERS.

By Clayton Rand.

There are millions of SQUARE-DEALERS in this country who subscribe neither to the philosophy of the NEW-DEALERS on the one hand nor to the doctrine of the DIRTY-DEALERS on the other.

Between the two extremes of the NEW-DEALERS we now have the DIRTY-DEALERS we had before we got what we now have, there lies the safer, saner middle ground of national security.

There are millions of conscientious SQUARE-DEALERS in America who believe that in the happy medium between our dangerous extremes lies the hope of the country.

One does not have to be either a DIRTY-DEALER or a NEW-DEALER to be a GOOD CITIZEN.

LET'S GET OUT OF DEBT.

Under this heading Albert S. Goss, Land Bank Commissioner, of the Federal Farm Credit Administration, sounds a timely warning in the April Progressive Farmer:—

"That's get out of debt. 'Let's get out of debt.' I would like to see placed on the wall of every Granger hall or other rural meeting place in America. The farm loan system is a system to provide credit where necessary but its central thought is getting out of debt. Had every farmer in America been able to see the results of too much debt as I have seen them, had they seen the distress which followed carrying heavy debts during the days of depression as I saw them, there would be a concerted effort to get out of debt that would soon put American agriculture on a very much sounder basis. Debt is all right to enable a borrower to acquire a farm or to increase his production but debt should be entered into only with the greatest care and, in my judgment, should be avoided if possible.

"Getting out of debt brings us to the question of getting into debt. One of the greatest dangers that American agriculture faces is the danger of land inflation. The memory of results of the recent land inflation should be so fresh in our minds that it should not be necessary for me to mention it, but many have already forgotten. Farm land should never be priced at more than it can pay interest on. Inflated land values mean higher interest, higher taxes, and higher operating costs, and once these advances it is almost impossible to get them reduced.

"During the year 1933 when land values were far below normal it took a lot of nerve for the Farm Credit Administration to lend on the basis of normal. In some cases we loaned as much money as the market value of the farm at that time, but this policy enabled thousands to keep their farm and was the greatest factor in stabilizing land values on a normal basis. It took nerve then. It's going to take backbone from now on to stand upon normal but we are going to do it."

TYPICAL U. S. MOTORIST RIDES 40 DAYS; THEN WORKS 7 DAYS TO PAY GASOLINE TAXES.

The typical motorist in the United States rides 40 eight-hour days each year in his automobile and then works seven days, or more, to earn enough money to pay gasoline taxes on the motor fuel he consumes, according to the American Petroleum Industries Committee.

Last year, explains the committee, the typical motorist used 641 gallons of gasoline, on which he paid $30.93 in state and federal taxes. At 15 miles to the gallon, that gasoline provided 9,615 miles of travel. Figuring an average of 30 miles an hour, that mileage is equivalent to 320 hours, or 40 eight-hour days. However, more than half of the motorists in the United States earn less than $1,500 a year, and the committee estimates that the typical American motorist must, therefore, work seven or more days to earn enough money to pay his gasoline taxes.

Especially burdensome are high gasoline taxes on workers using their motor vehicles for travel to and from work. A man living 10 miles from the factory or office where he is employed travels 20 miles daily. (Continued on last page.)

BOARD URGES CAUTION CONCERNING SOCIAL SECURITY ACCOUNT NUMBERS.

Get the right number when you list employees on your information reports, J. E. Jackson, manager of the San Antonio field office of the Social Security Board today cautioned commercial and industrial employers throughout the San Antonio area who are seeking to obtain the social security account numbers of wage earners no longer in their employ.

Under Treasury regulations, Jackson explained, employers must list employee account numbers on their information reports. Post offices are requesting that if an employee has failed to report his social security account number, the employer should file an application form (SS-5) with sufficient supporting information to establish the employee's identity beyond reasonable doubt. This application will be checked against the files to see if an account number has already been issued. If the employee has no account number, the employer must then file an application for an account number on behalf of his employee, stating on the form the reason for his filing such application.

Mr. Jackson also urged all employees who have not yet reported their social security account numbers to their employers to do so promptly. This applies also to workers who have worked for more than one employer since January 1, 1937, even though the period of their employment may have been one day or less.

Account numbers are being issued to workers through the facilities of more than 45,000 post offices which are being utilized in the assignment of account numbers until June 30. On July 1, and thereafter, application form of account numbers can be obtained at any local post office, and at regional and field offices of the Board, but assignment of account numbers will be made by the Board through field offices. The San Antonio field office is located at 501 Maverick Building.

and paid approximately $10,000 for culls. In the 1934-35 season, seven plants operated, paying $70,000 for fruit. During the 1935-36 season, 17 plants paid $226,000 for 25,000 tons of grapefruit, a return of more than a quarter million dollars from an industry that did not exist 3 years before. This season, says Heid, the prospect is that citrus plants will pay in the neighborhood of half a million dollars for about 60,000 tons of oranges and grapefruit to be converted into canned juices, concentrates, marmalades, wines, flavoring, beverage bases, and pickled and candied peel.

ATTRACTIVE FARM HOME.

Oscar Richarz was in the city last Saturday morning from his farm in the Trio community, telling that he did not receive as much rain last week as did his neighbors, but the 1 1/2 inches which he did receive over his place will be most beneficial to his crops, especially to the corn and what had appeared a short time before to be almost a failure in a corn crop now gives promise of a pretty good yield. Richarz has recently remodeled and enlarged his home and now has one of the most attractive farm homes in that part of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lieber and daughter left Monday for Castroville to spend the summer with Mr. Lieber's father who has been an invalid for over a year.

What is Most Important, HOLC or Homeowners?

With the above question as a caption, The Progressive of Madison, Wisconsin, mouthpiece for the La Follettes of that state, and, for the most part, a sympathizer with New Dealisms, speaks as follows:

"The Home Owners Loan Corporation, supposedly a federal 'rescue' agency, holds a total of 1,021,800 mortgages on 160,000 of which it plans to start immediate foreclosure action, it says in its recently issued annual report.

"In other words, one out of every six HOLC borrowers are to be squeezed out of their property because they are unable to meet the 9.2 per cent interest and amortization payment rate demanded by the HOLC.

"The foreclosure parades already staged by the HOLC have put that agency in the class of a hard-hearted money lender exacting the last penny of every bond whereas its real function should be one of helping to rehabilitate families and protecting and preserving homeownership.

"The HOLC in its report said nothing about reducing its high interest and amortization charge that the burden on its more than a million clients might be bearable. Instead it contemplates a vast foreclosure drive and asks $3,000,000 of congress to pay lawyers' fees in connection with these foreclosures.

"HOLC officials talk much about making that agency 'self-sustaining' and almost boastfully make the prediction that in 1938 the HOLC will own 'more individual pieces of property than were ever held in a single ownership before'. Property, of course, that once was the privately owned homes of American families.

"It looks suspiciously like the HOLC needs a redefinition of purpose. The important thing is not an elaborate financial showing on the books of the HOLC. What counts is the welfare of those who are struggling to save their home."

With all of which FARMING is in hearty accord, especially the conclusion.

But it seems to this writer that the Progressive has missed the main issues and touched the mere surface only.

In the first place, 9.2 per cent is usury, and even Uncle Sam, if permitted to go into the loan business at all, should not be allowed to join the Shylocks.

But granting that HOLC borrowers could pay him his pound of flesh, and that he is within his legitimate sphere (which we do not concede) to practice the trade of loan-shark, how can they be expected to buy and own homes without a reduction in the tax burden that is depriving many homeowners of homes bequeathed them free of encumbrance by their fathers?

At best, under the present set up about all the HOLC borrower can hope for is the privilege of spending the rest of his life slaving to pay tribute to the tax- and interest-takers; few will ever clear their indebtedness and come into real ownership of their homes.

If by this process, we were simply being eased into communism, where all work for the government and all share alike in the misery—for when that condition comes there will be left little to share save misery—it might not be so bad.

But worse than that awaits the future—the way we are headed!

Be it remembered that the money used to finance the HOLC does not belong to the government nor to the taxpayers.

If the government would use its credit and issue it in the form of legal tender script direct to the borrowers it could be issued at an interest rate that the borrower could pay, and his taxes could be materially reduced in the process.

But not so in the present set up.

The government prefers to borrow from bondholders, paying them needless interest; then acting as a loan agent, underwriting the loans and assuming all the risks of bad loans and misfortune; and setting up an expensive operating agency in the process for the benefit of the privately owned holding company that is behind the agency.

These same facts damns the Farm Rehabilitation scheme and possibly every other lending agency now operating under the New Deal regime.

Simmered down to brutal facts and in plain language, under the guise of a great humanitarian scheme for aiding the needy, we and our posterity are being sold into bondage to our bond-masters and Uncle Sam is being transformed into a Simon Legree to enforce our masters' will on their slaves.

Not even a benevolent communism is in sight before our present course.

Don't borrow your neighbor's copy of the local paper. He buys it for his own and his family's use and not to be bothered about it by others. Then when you add your subscription to its list you help the paper to render a better service to all. Now is the time to subscribe.

Come to the Hondo Land Co. when you wish to buy or sell real estate.

FIGHT FLIES.

Swat that fly! Especially important, swat the FIRST flies! Since a female lays 120 eggs at a time and a generation is produced every tenth day, the first fly to appear may increase to amazing numbers before the summer is over, every one of them spreading disease and filth. As The Progressive Farmer says:—

"For their size flies probably carry more filth than any other living thing. Their cup-shaped feet and hairy legs bring filth to your home and table, if they can get in. They bring filth from the dirtiest places on your lot or your neighbor's lot.

"The kind of bacteria the fly brings depends on where he has been. Flies carry all kinds of disease germs—tuberculosis, smallpox, typhoid, infections of the skin, pink eye, cholera, dysentery, etc.

"What to do about flies? Screens—more screens, better screens. Small mesh screens. Screens which fit. Screens which close tight and stay tight. Screens without sags, rips, or rents—screens that absolutely keep flies out of the house. Of course there are flytraps and fly paper, preventives, sprays, and the like. But in my opinion there is only one way to handle the fly question—PROHIBITION BY SCREENS.

"The mesh of the screen should be not larger than 16; an 18-mesh would be better. Screens should cover the whole window, always on the outside. All porches, both front and back, should be securely screened. The porch should be boarded up at least one foot from the floor in order to prevent small animals from scratching in the wire or children from knocking holes. All chimneys should be covered by screens."

During a three month demonstration which was recently concluded, members of the Leon Valley 4-H club of Bexar county tanned nearly 300 pounds of leather, including deer skins and calf and cow hides. The alum and salt method was used to some extent, but most of the leather was chrome tanned. As a result of this demonstration, most of the surplus hides in the community were tanned and made into usable leather.

Editor's Daughter Wins On Editorial

Carolyn Craig, only daughter of R. T. Craig, editor of The Athens Review, won the William Thompson award for editorial writing at Southern Methodist University Subject was "The Pan American Exposition." Editorials were judged by Charles Ferguson, associate editor of Reader's Digest, J. C. Butts, editor of The Hillsboro Mirror, and Wayne Gard, editorial writer on The Dallas News.

THE SPOTLIGHT

So-called "nuisance" automobile taxes, passed in 1932 under an "Emergency Law" still bring the government about $300,000,000 a year from taxpayers' pockets. . . . After nuisance taxes include admissions, jewelry, three-cent postage. . . . We know a stronger word than nuisance. . . . The war on traffic accidents, declared President Hoffman of Studebaker in Virginia State-Wide Safety Conference, will not be won by one battle, but by a long, strenuous campaign on many fronts. . . . Your own battlefield is on your own car. . . . Keep it in the clear. . . . Automotive experts in M. C. A. reached the highest valuation in seven years, almost $30,000,000. . . . A lot of money better spent than on coronations or munitions. . . . Bendix announces new Hydraulic Hand—keeps wheels steady after punctures. . . . The kind of salesman we don't like is the butcher on the train that used to throw peppermints at you, and the car salesman today that delivers the car with the radio you didn't order installed. . . . No time so well for driving as these early summer evenings—but remember the AAA slogan. . . . Slow down at Sundown.

Mr. Henry Haass of D'Hanis escaped death, narrowly when the truck in which he was riding was struck by a freight train near D'Hanis last Saturday morning, June 12. The train crew picked up the injured man and brought him to Hondo on the caboose. Here he was transferred by ambulance to the Medina Hospital where his injuries were found to be a broken leg and minor bruises and cuts. Mr. Haass' condition is reported satisfactory at this time.

Mr. Trinkelbach, house-builder of Bandera, has about completed a rock-veneer cottage for Jimmy Lynch on the highway in the west side of town. The outer walls are built of field stones of various shapes and sizes, cemented together and the irregular joints pointed in black. As the rocks are mostly white, the arrangement gives the building an attractive and unique appearance. The interior is to be finished with paper over ship-lap, and assures comfortable living quarters. The structure is said to be both durable and economical.

IN MEMORY OF IRENE HADY SCHOTT.

A call from on high Was sounded that day And some angels came by To escort Irene away.

Our Maker has called her, Called her away But we must remember We'll again see her on Judgment Day.

We'll see her once more, When we, too, shall be called By Him whom we adore And wish to meet without fault.

A dearer person than Irene Was never known. That accounts for God's wanting Her again for His very own.

Her life on this earth Was far too short, And having her leave them Almost broke her loved ones' heart.

Oh, it is so hard! To have to lose one so dear! But we know that our Lord With her is forever near.

I, too, loved her, As a friend, dear and true. She was as sweet a person As I ever knew.

Sweet and charming And a smile on her face, That was always Irene When you'd meet her some place.

Oh, dear loved ones of hers, Try not to grieve, But remember her in your prayers Which God will receive. June 8, 1937. A FRIEND.

Church's Influence Essential for Community Welfare

You Have Something for the Church

The Church Has Something for You

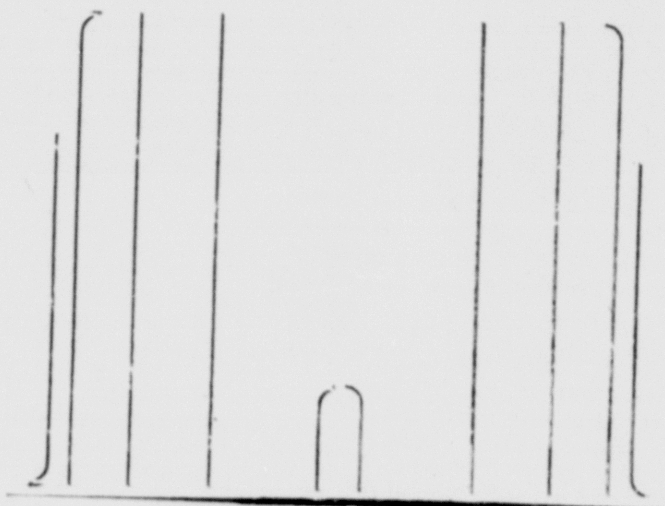

This is one of a series of inspirational messages that will appear in the Anvil Herald from week to week, bringing to you the views of Hondo clergymen.

This contribution to the religious welfare of this community is made possible through the generous co-operation of the business firms whose names are listed on this page.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

St. Paul's congregation was founded in the courthouse of Medina County in Hondo, August 23, 1908, by the late Rev. A. Falkenberg. Twenty-two names constituted the original charter membership roll. The above beautiful church edifice was erected and dedicated in 1911. The founder, Rev. A. Falkenberg, who was in the ministry over 50 years, served the congregation until 1922, when he retired and Rev. G. E. Grueber was called as his successor and served till 1926. Rev. H. A. Heineke served this charge from 1927 to 1931. The present pastor, Rev. Walter C. Leibfarth, was called in 1931, who still has charge. At present the church has over 200 communicants.

is as true as the Word. "Righteousness exalteth a nation." Our first settlers knew the duty to God and to man. Later pioneers did not try to find a place to worship, but they worshipped where they found a home. The real worthwhile contributions to American community life were motivated by men and women of faith in God and courage of conviction. The church tower rose beside the school room; the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, blest the sceptre of government.

The Church has even a greater claim to her position among men; she has a divine command to exercise Christian faith in teaching and

The Voice of The Church

REV. W. C. LEIBFARTH,
Pastor of St. Paul's Ev. Lutheran Church.

WE ARE grateful to the business firms of Hondo for generously providing this space for the "Voice of the Church". The management of the Hondo Anvil Herald has always been considerate in printing church news and letting the churches of the community speak through its pages. It is demonstrated that the business and professional men of this city also appreciate the importance of the Church in the life of a good community. Like you the Churches are here to render service to the public, and that in the highest possible manner.

The Christian Church needs no introduction. She does not apologize for being a vital part of an American community. Did not our forefathers establish a new nation that they might worship God in freedom according to the dictates of their conscience? Her schools of higher learning, other institutions including government were based upon religious principles, and formed the basis for a prosperous America. The president of Argentine explained this success in these words: "The Spaniards came to America seeking gold; the Pilgrims came to America seeking God." "They shall prosper that love Thee" preaching. This involves the erection of churches, as well as the maintenance of wholesome family life and schools. The Church primarily is of the Lord and serves the Lord. When you examine the statistics in the growth of population and compare these figures with the comparative growth of Church membership, you will find that the latter has kept pace with the former, and the church membership increased even more in proportion to the corresponding growth in population.

The Christian Church has a claim on every man. She exists to serve the soul. "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul. Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" God laid the emphasis where it belongs: on man's immortal self. Man lays it too much upon things—upon money and machinery, upon pleasure and power. The paths of history are strewn with broken empires and kingdoms, with wrecked lives and man-ruined institutions. God knows the value of the human soul; it cost Him His only Son to save it. "Ye are bought with a price." The Church does His bidding; the Church is there to seek your best interests and those of your community. The past five or six years should have taught us the futility of things and made us more receptive to the Church's claim. The Church inspires the highest ideals, she stands for the noblest living. The Church knows the way to a really happy and contented life. What it does for the individual soul it is doing for the society as a whole and for the nation. The nation is and can be no better than her citizens.

The Churches of Hondo invite you. St. Paul's Lutheran Church is ready to serve those of that persuasion. We wish a great measure of joy and peace to our fellow-citizens.

Refusal of Postal Employees to Deliver Mail to Stricken Plants Stirrs Row—Labor Flare-Ups Continue—Britain Blames Franco for Naval Blast.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

AS A senate committee pondered the advisability of an investigation into the attitude of the post office department with respect to deliveries of mail to strike-crippled industrial plants, new incidents among employers, loyal employees and strikers flared up on half a dozen fronts.

Farley

When John L. Lewis gave the order throwing 70,000 men out of work in the plants of Republic Steel, Inland Steel and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, hard-boiled Tom Girdler, president of the American Steel and Iron institute and chairman of the board of the Republic Steel corporation, kept loyal workers housed in the Republic plants in Ohio and Illinois, so that despite the strike Republic was still turning out steel.

In Warren and Niles, Ohio, postal authorities refused to deliver parcel post packages containing food and clothing to workers inside the plants. This action brought from Republic a protest to Postmaster General Farley, requesting that he issue orders to postmasters to see that all legally presented and post paid mail be delivered regardless of picket lines.

"Unless you see fit to comply with this request, which we believe to be entirely within our legal rights," the message said, "we shall feel compelled to take such legal steps as may be available to us in the premises."

Capitalizing on the action of local postmasters, Ohio pickets issued a printed ultimatum to loyal steel employees. "Four departments of the United States government are fighting on our side," it said, and added: "Extra precautions will be taken throughout the next 12 hours to guarantee your safety in leaving the plant. After that time your safety will be your own responsibility."

The four departments of the government believed to have been referred to are the post office, labor department, labor relations board and interstate commerce commission.

It was Sen. H. Styles Bridges (Rep., N. H.) who presented the case for an investigation to the senate committee on post offices. He was reported to have enlisted the support of Democratic Sen. Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina.

REPUBLIC'S plants continued to be beehives of excitement. At Youngstown there was a pitched battle between pickets and police after a company truck carrying food for the employees in the plant had successfully run through the picket lines, accompanied by a cordon of police. As shots were exchanged one man was wounded. A dozen officers received cracked skulls. Fifty strikers, many of them suffering from tear gas, were taken to jail.

In Chicago State's Attorney Courtney continued investigations of the recent riot in which C. I. O. strikers attacked police at the Republic Steel plant in South Chicago, resulting in seven deaths. Here, also, the company was housing loyal employees who remained at their work in its plant. Mayor Kelly ordered them removed on the grounds that such housing violated the city sanitation code. Republic countered by having Pullman cars moved into its plant yards and housing the employees in them. The mayor admitted he couldn't see anything wrong in that.

FOUR hundred C. I. O. power company strikers taught the 450,000 inhabitants of the Saginaw valley in Michigan what it is like to feel the power of organized labor when they sat down at their jobs for 15 hours. Electricity was shut off from 200 communities; hospitals as well as factories were without current before an agreement was reached and the strikers went back to work. It was a day's pay lost for 100,000 workers whose employers' plants depended on "juice" for life. General Motors employees alone lost $454,000.

Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs of Monroe, Mich., called for 100 war veterans as volunteer police to aid his force of 20 in preserving the peace as 782 strikers at the Newton Steel company returned to work. The C. I. O. had threatened to send 8,000 to 10,000 members from Detroit to enforce the employees' demands.

In Detroit, the Ford Brotherhood of America, Inc., was organized with a reported 7,000 members signed in two days, as an answer to attempts of C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers' Union to unionize Ford. Byrd W. Scott, a Ford machinist, for 20 years, explained: "The F. B. A. was started by myself, John B. McDowell, Benjamin Love and a number of Ford employees who have worked for the company from ten to twenty years. The organization was formed because we wanted an independent labor organization, not one affiliated with any national union."

READING the election returns of an overwhelming Democratic landslide last November, Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, said: "We will regret this." The great party majorities in both houses now show signs of splitting into regional and economic blocs, which is exactly what he was afraid of. Biggest wedge in forcing the split among the party ranks was, of course, the President's bill for the reorganization of the Supreme court. This led a long list of bills, many of them expected to evoke heated controversies in congress, which threatened to postpone adjournment to mid-winter. Indeed, it was believed by some that if part of the program were not postponed, this session would run continuously into the next, beginning in January.

Besides the Court bill, there are to be acted upon measures for the establishment of wage and hour standards for interstate industries, the curtailment of tax dodging, reorganization of the executive branch of the government, helping farm tenants, conservation of soil, water power resources and housing.

"IS THE Democratic party going Fascist?" asked Samuel B. Pettingill, (Dem., Ind.) on the floor of the house, in upbraiding Gov. Frank B. Murphy of Michigan for his sponsorship of a law in that state which would authorize him to take over industrial plants and operate them when they have been closed by labor troubles.

"Let the historian note that this is the way Fascism made its start in Italy," he said. "If the state takes over the factories, who will fix wages then, who will fix hours then? After the state takes over a factory, will it permit its workers to strike? The state then has the opportunity of operating the plant at a profit, without running up a deficit for the taxpayers to absorb. Will the state then permit an interruption of operations?"

AS THE American Federation of Labor began its "purge" to eliminate member locals suspected of dealings with the C. I. O. from its membership, John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization showed signs of retaliation other than snorts of disgust and derisive laughter.

John L. Lewis

The Chicago Federation of Labor began it when, acting on the suggestion of President William Green, it ousted 27 local unions, comprising 20,000 to 30,000 members, charging that they had been active in behalf of C. I. O. A day or so later Lewis admitted in Washington that his organization may enter the field of civil service. The move, which had been discussed by Lewis and his associates for several weeks, would be in direct opposition of two established A. F. of L. unions.

IN A scorching protest to Gen. Francisco Franco, Great Britain blamed the rebel regime for the death of eight and the wounds of 24 sailors when the destroyer Hunter ran into a mine off Almeria, Southern Spain, May 13. The protest called the affair an accident, but reserved the right to claim damages of $350,000.

Meanwhile rains were bogging down the rebels' northern offensive against Bilbao, but the Fascists launched a violent new offensive in the Pozoblanco sector about midway between Toledo and Seville in southern Spain, aiming for the rich mercury mines near Almaden.

ASTRONOMERS were treated to the feast of a lifetime in the South Seas as they were permitted by almost perfect weather conditions to photograph the longest total eclipse of the sun in 1,200 years. On Canton island the United States Navy and the National Geographic society, with eleven tons of equipment, took unusual pictures and radioed a description of the magnificent scene to millions of listeners back in the states. The scholars of the American Museum of Natural History viewed the eclipse from an airplane 25,000 feet above Lima, Peru. Other scientists made observations from ships in the Pacific. The time of the total eclipse at the various place of observation ranged from three and one-half minutes to seven minutes. It was a short show for which to travel thousands of miles with costly, cumbersome equipment, but, measured by scientific standards, it was worth the cost and the trouble.

ON December 15, 1936, Pilot S. J. Samson, operating a Western Air Express liner from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City, with four passengers, co-pilot and stewardess aboard, reported by his radio to the caretaker of the airport at Milford, Utah, and asked that his position be checked. His voice was never again heard. Now after nearly six months the wreckage of the airplane has been found high in the Wasatch mountains, 25 miles south-east of Salt Lake City and 35 miles off the regular airline course. So shattered was the plane that the largest single piece of debris was a part of a propeller. Bodies of all aboard were buried 25 to 50 feet in the drifts of snow.

With a rich jewelry shipment reported to have been aboard the ship, a guard was placed around the wreckage and given orders to "shoot on sight" until the wreck should be recovered; four souvenir-hunters were shot at three times. Ronald Dyche, of the national forest service, who aided in the long search, revealed how close the air travelers came to escaping death. "If they had just been flying 25 feet higher," he said, "they might have made it over the peak and possibly reached safety."

CERTAIN British and French newspapers of late have seen fit to "pooh-pooh" the naval strength of Il Duce in the Mediterranean. It is not altogether impossible that this depreciation may have made Adolf Hitler a little uneasy about his alliance with the Italians. So Premier Mussolini invited Field Marshal Werner von Bismarck down to the blue southern ocean to see for himself.

More than 70 submarines were massed as the feature of a mock combat off Naples. The grand fleet of 150 warships summoned for the maneuvers went through their exercises at a minimum speed of 30 miles an hour. The German registered delight continually as Il Duce pointed out to him every phase of the sham battle. Italian officers boasted: "Only Fascist Italy can mobilize so many underwater craft at a moment's notice."

The day before, Galeazzo Ciano, Italy's foreign minister, had informed the British ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond, that Italy accepted in principle all points in the British proposals to assure the safety of international naval patrols off Spain. It was understood that the Nazis had tendered the same approval.

The three main points of the British proposal were: That both Spanish belligerents be required to give formal solemn assurances that they will respect international patrol ships; that safety zones for patrol ships be established at certain specified ports of the two belligerent parties; and that the four naval powers engaged in patrol duties consult each other on measures to be taken if any of their patrol ships should be attacked. The Italians and Nazis wanted the third point to permit any ship attacked to retaliate at once. But they weren't insistent.

THE Reich's ministry of the interior was reported considering plans to control the utterances of Roman Catholic priests of Germany and to regulate Catholic cloisters. It is believed the declaration will be that any document not pertaining entirely to church matters will be regarded as outside the concordat with the Vatican and will not be permitted a reading from the pulpit. It was reported that five cloisters involved in immorality charges will be closed and that the Nazi government will take over the parochial schools.

Ten Roman Catholic priests were arrested as the dissension between the government and the church was fanned to a white heat, culminating in several fights in Munich. Priests replied spiritedly to charges of immorality within their ranks—charges made by Minister of Propaganda Goebbels in reply to a verbal attack upon the Nazis by Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago.

Hitler, in a speech at Regensburg, declared: "It is not God who divides us, but human beings. The Almighty has blessed our work; therefore, it cannot be destroyed." Priests read their congregations the answer they had drafted to the immorality charges. It declared that of 25,635 priests in Germany, only 58 are involved in immorality charges, or "less than 1/4 of 1 per cent, or one priest in every 500."

Pope Pius XI personally declared that he would continue the bitter fight for German Catholics "no matter what becomes of us."

JEAN HARLOW, one of the most glamorous characters in life to millions of Americans, died of uremic poisoning in Hollywood. The impetuous actress who started the platinum blonde craze was only twenty-six, but she had known tragedy. Born Harlean Carpenter in Kansas City, she came to the movie capital in 1927. She had been twice divorced and once widowed.

JOHN D. MUTATION.

With eager heart I journeyed back
To treasured spots of childhood's day.
But oh what changes Time had wrought!
The old log house and aged tree
Lay tombed beneath a paved highway;
No loved ones stayed to welcome me,
And cherished scenes in vain I sought,
For none were as they used to be.

I asked for one—I loved her so,
My winsome chum of yesteryear,
"She died," they said, "one month ago."
One tranquil, sacred plot, alone,
Swift-winged years left undis-turbed.
Tho' Time had dimmed the loved one's name
Upon the crumbling moss-grown stone.

With aching heart I turned away,
Shut fast the door of memory,
Lest Time, relentless, enter there,
And alter, too, forevermore,
My hallowed dreams of childhood's day.

—SARAH MIZELLE MORGAN

A TRIBUTE TO DAD.

By Sarah Mizelle Morgan.

Jane Thomas, pretty, vivacious daughter of Dr. Jim Thomas of Zion community, lay stretched out comfortably on the divan in the room which served as the family library and general living room. Her almost raven curls, as unruly as Jane herself at times, fell about her head in abandon while her brown eyes with the animated sparkle of sweet sixteen, perused a magazine missing nothing of the modernistic within its pages.

Across the room her brother Harry, two years her senior, sat reading intently. Unlike his care-free, tomboyish sister, Harry was quite settled for one of eighteen, and serious minded. Their opposite dispositions made not the slightest difference in their companionship and devotion. In the end they usually agreed on almost everything tho' sometimes a verbal battle preceded the truce.

Harry closed the magazine he had been reading and laid it aside. For a moment he looked at Jane in silence.

"Jane," he said seriously, "I've been thinking and I have decided that the younger generation are a selfish lot. I think that you and I head the list, and you in particular."

Jane sat up suddenly. "Well of all the nerve!" she cried indignantly. "Say! what's come over you anyway? If you have to think why pick on me? Besides, you shouldn't think so much, it makes you look so stupid."

"Well," Harry retorted hotly, "I'd rather look stupid than dumb like you; it's more becoming. Anyway, let's see you explain the selfishness out of the fact that you intend going to college this fall just for the good time you will have, and because Lucille and Harold are going, and you think you might lose him to some other girl. Now come on, tell the truth. Isn't that what you told me?"

"Well," Jane mumbled inaudibly. "But you know, Harry, I wouldn't be any good around here, and I might as well have a good time while I can. But tell me what put such a crazy idea into your head?"

Harry held up the magazine he had been reading. "An article I read in this magazine, and the sermon our Pastor preached on Mother's Day. Remember? He said: 'Honor thy father and mother, and in honoring them you also honor your Heavenly Father.' That's one of the ten commandments," Harry continued. "Well, we don't honor our father."

"Oh don't be silly Harry!" Jane chided. "Honor means obey them and we do obey ours, don't we?"

Harry grinned. "I'm not so sure about that as far as you are concerned."

"What do you mean?" Jane demanded defiantly.

"Now don't play dumb Jane," Harry laughed.

"How would you explain your presence at the dance last Friday night when you were only supposed to spend the night with Lucille? Didn't I think I knew did you? Harry teased.

"Anyway," he continued, "honor means a great deal more than just obey."

"You don't say!" Jane snapped pitifully. "Sh—here comes mother," Jane whispered cautiously, placing her fingers over her lips as the door opened and Martha Thomas entered with her mending basket.

"I'm not interrupting a private conference am I?" she asked smiling as she sat down beside Jane.

"Oh no, Jane replied nonchalantly. "Harry's just been thinking again. This time he has decided that the younger set are selfish, and I in particular."

Martha glanced at Harry a bit puzzled.

"Mother," Jane said earnestly, as if the significance of Harry's accusations had just dawned upon her, "You don't really think we young people are selfish, do you?"

"Well," Martha replied in surprise, "That's putting the question rather suddenly, isn't it, Jane? No, dear, I don't think you're selfish—but—"

Martha continued soberly, "I wouldn't say they were exactly selfish—that is—not intentionally. A bit un-thought at times, perhaps—but—"

Martha paused. "Tell me what brought about this serious question?"

"Oh something or other Harry's been reading," Jane answered.

"Well Harry," Martha said smiling. "If it's all that impressive it must be interesting. Suppose you read it to Jane and me."

"All right I will," Harry answered.

"And Jane," Harry continued: "While I read, you see if you can't exercise that lazy brain of yours, it will do you good."

Harry began:

"A TRIBUTE TO DAD"

Down thru the ages much has been said, much written praising the living and the dead. Then a day was dedicated each year on which to honor one whom the world holds dear; and the Nation joins to applaud one whose sacrifice and love, whose loyalty and devotion stir within us tempests of emotion—MOTHER. A mother worth her weight in gold seems to us greatest. But there is another our memories recall to whom honor is due. He silently trudges his way proving his devotion too, by his labors day after day. Gladly he sacrifices dreams and pleasures for loved ones; seldom receiving in any measure praise, comfort, even words of cheer. Seemingly forgotten except for some special need. He gives his best, his all, asking no compensation, lovingly granting each request tho' we hide appreciation. Let us help make "FATHER'S DAY" a twin to "MOTHER'S DAY", and pay tribute to dear old Dad who, after all, walks side by side with Mother.

"Well," Jane remarked with some concern, "that does sound like the good old fathers have been a bit neglected."

"I've got it!" Jane suddenly snapped her fingers. "Harry, what do you say we pool our money and buy Dad a gift for 'FATHER'S DAY'?"

"Mother," Jane continued, "what do you think of that idea, to show him we really do appreciate him?"

"I think that's fine Jane," Martha answered softly. "I'm sure it would make your father very happy to know some one remembered him. He has done so much for others you know. And lately he has been so discouraged. Collections have not been good and with the expense of you and Harry entering college this fall—"

"That's a good idea for a beginning, Jane," Harry interrupted. "But I intend to do more than that and I think you should too. I am going to plan my career for something worthwhile. Service to Humanity. I think that would be the greatest gift of all to Dad, and a tribute to his example. I am going to start this fall by working my way through the Seminary instead of taking it easy and letting Dad pay the bills. Dean Roberts told me he would have a place in his office."

Martha hastily brushed away an unbidden tear. What a load that would lift from Jim's shoulders she thought.

Jane looked at Harry with unconcealed admiration for a moment before she spoke. "Oh Harry!" she cried enthusiastically, "I think that's swell. Mother, you were much too lenient in your judgment of THIS younger generation."

"Well, don't forget what the Bible tells us about judging, my dear," Martha answered, smiling.

"And Harry," Jane said quite seriously, "you have put me to thinking. Only I hope I don't look quite as stupid as you." Jane added laughing.

"I have decided that we will not only get that gift for Dad, but we will tell him our plans when we present it to him. I'll tell him I'm going to enter the hospital for training instead of going to college this fall. Dad has always wanted me to be a nurse, and anyway, I just love fussing around sick folks."

"That's great, Jane!" Harry cried rapturously as he rushed over and caught Jane in his arms and planted a kiss on each cheek. "We'll really pay a tribute to Dad some day. He'll be proud of us yet, won't he, Mother?"

"I am proud of you too, my dears," Martha said huskily, placing her arms around them and making no effort to brush away the tears that coursed down her cheeks. "And remember," Martha added happily, "you will be paying a tribute to your Heavenly Father as well, and He will be proud of you too."

In the ruins of ancient Babylon searchers unearthed carvings in stone believed to be more than 6000 years old showing a milking scene.

DOWNFALL OF THE HAT.

When John announced he'd buy a hat
To match his new spring suit,
And gloves, and socks, and grey cravat,
It went without dispute.

Its purpose,—to protect his pate
From summer's fiercest heat;
And wintry gales whose average rate
Near blew him off his feet.

When new this hat was brushed with care
Whenever it was worn;
And cleaned and blocked and sewed whenever
He found it soiled or torn.

It waved when Freedom's Banner flew
In every great parade;
And 'tipped' to all the girls he knew,
To every winsome maid.

It waved to signal deep distress
Which threatened limb or life;
And 'doffed' when eagerly he'd press
His suit to win a wife.

It waved to Geyser's steaming jet;
Sequoia's tallest tree;
And also Frisco's Golden Gate
Where river kissed the sea.

When this grey hat had grown quite old
And lost its freshest sheen,
Its purpose then more manifold
Than ever it had been.

It served to swat that pesky fly
That lit on Dobbin's flank;
And dipped from streamlet trickling by,
And horse and man both drank.

It brought old Buffy's downy chicks
From underneath the hay;
'Twas used in playing 'bunny' tricks
To everyone's dismay.

At last this hat (it seems a shame),
With other cast-off clothes,
Was dropped upon a wooden frame
To frighten off the crows.

The phenomenal growth of the Texas grapefruit by-products industry is shown in the report that citrus canning plants this season will pay $500,000 for 60,000 tons of oranges and grapefruit for conversion into juices, concentrates, marmalades, wine, flavoring, beverage bases, and candied peels. Two years ago $25,000 tons were thus sold, for $226,000, and in 1933 the canned portion of the crop amounted to only $10,000. The number of Texas plants has grown from three to 25.

MILDEW RESISTANT CANTALOUPE.

The United States Department of Agriculture and the California Agricultural Experiment Station have developed a new cantaloupe—"Mildew Resistant Cantaloupe No. 45"—which is resistant to powdery mildew.

The new cantaloupe is similar to Hale Best in superior taste and shipping qualities, but matures a little later. It is slightly oblong and uniform in shape and size. The seed cavity is small and holds firm even when shipped long distances. The flesh is firm and sweet. Its color is "salmon" or orange altho a little lighter than other commercial varieties.

Because of its superior shipping quality, No. 45 may remain on the vine until it is mature, a distinct advantage over the other varieties. A disadvantage is that the early cantaloupes are somewhat small for commercial shipment while the last of the crop is rather large.

About half of the Imperial Valley, California acreage was planted to this variety last year and more this year.

The above article was released by the Press Service of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. It should be of interest to many farmers in Medina County, as quite a few have had difficulty with mildew on their cantaloups.

County Agricultural Agent.

STICK CANDY CAKE.

By Mary L. Ballew.

Children always like something new, something different. Here is a little stunt I tried on my little girl's birthday. Instead of using candles I placed bright colored sticks of candy—one for each year of her age—on the snow-white cake. The bright candy made a pleasing contrast to the snowy icing and the little folks were delighted.

SHALL WE WELCOME ANOTHER AUTOCRAT?

One recalls that the President said to a Congressman: "Don't let any doubt, however reasonable, as to the constitutionality of this law prevent you from voting for it."

Will it be said to the new appointees to the Supreme Court: "Don't let any doubt, however reasonable, prevent you from finding this legislation constitutional?"

If you didn't like the remark to a Congressman, what do you say when you think of its being made or implied to the Supreme Court?

Do you recall the charge made against King George of England, our last autocrat? It was made in the Declaration of Independence and sets out one basic reason for the American Revolution. Listen to the charge made: "He has made judges dependent on his will alone for the tenure of their offices."—F. H. Stinchfield

WE NEED FOREIGN TRADE.

Lack of foreign trade and failure to keep in step with the times in effecting new arrangements for international exchange of goods upsets our domestic economic system in many seemingly obscure ways, says Armour Company's house organ. It further observes:

Two instances of the close relations between domestic and foreign markets are discussed in recent editions of two agricultural periodicals.

Wallace's Farmer asserts: "Whenever we hear of anybody urging the farmers of the corn belt to raise more acres of sugar beets, we wonder whether most farmers would prefer to trade their land to Cuba in return for sugar or to reduce their hog production and go into the raising of sugar beets instead. Quite clearly, we can produce pork and lard better than Cuba. Why not swap?"

The National Livestock Producer shows concern over the loss of America's cotton market abroad and asserts that the situation should interest every American stockman, because:

"Loss of these foreign markets means that the cotton belt farmers will continue to turn to livestock and grain. The answer to the export market for cotton is found in our tariff policy which is as much a matter of concern to stockmen as to the cotton growers right now."

Whenever a foreign market for American products or raw materials is cut off, it is a distinct shock to our
